Comparisons between China and Capitalist States

- Comparison with formerly socialist countries
    - Following the overthrow of socialism in eastern Europe and central Asia, capitalism was restored which lead to millions of premature deaths due to the severe drop in living standards. If capitalism was indeed restored in China, we would expect to see a similar phenomenon. How does China compare with the regions that formerly part of the Soviet Union?
    - Eastern Europe has the largest population loss in modern history
    - China’s achievement is literally the greatest in world economic history
- Comparison with Capitalist Countries
    - India and China share similar histories of imperialist oppression and underdevelopment, population size, and conditions. India won its independence in 1947 and has pursued capitalist development; the People's Republic of China was established in 1949 and has pursued socialist development. Given the similarities between these two countries, it is illustrative to examine how they compare:
